

The Faculty of Environmental Sciences

hosts

"A Morning with Dr Janis Birkeland"

where we will discuss

Engaging Staff & Students through Sustainability & Eco-Innovation

Friday 15 October, 10:00 - 11:30am

Dean's Meeting Room (N55 0.20)

'Scrumptious' morning tea provided!

Space limited to 20, so please RSVP to Cheryl to secure your spot (c.paten@griffith.edu.au, Ext: 56635)

Dr Janis Birkeland was an artist and architect before becoming an urban designer and city planner with the City of San Francisco. She later became an attorney, with a focus on environmental law and planning. Dr Birkeland is now a fellow at the Australian National University having lived and worked in Australia for many years, and is a director of Sustainability Science Team Pty Ltd, a research consultancy. She has held senior positions in urban design, land use planning, advocacy planning, architecture and environmental education.

Her qualifications include a PhD in environmental planning, management and governance, a Juris Doctor (law), MA Architecture, and BA in Fine Arts. Janis has recently published "Design for Sustainability", a copy of which will also be available to view at this session. (www.earthscan.co.uk/asp/bookdetails.asp?key=3626)

